EDGAR G. MURPHY SECURES THE AMA-TEUR SILVER TROPHY.

REMARKABLE FEATS IN THE MATCH AT LARCH MONT-THE WINNER SHOOTS OFF A TIE WITH CHARLES MACALESTER.

The great pigeon match for the amateur champlonship, which was finished at Larchmont yesterday, was one of the most remarkable contests of the hind that ever took place in this country. fourteen contestants were all crack shots, and every one of them had made records in previous matches which were hard to beat. It was difficult to pick a winner while the shooting was in progress. ny of the scores were so close in the course of the day that there was no telling what might hap-The winner finally was the well-known clubman Edgar G. Murphy, who defeated his nearest opponent, Charles Macalester, the champion of Philadelphia, in the shoot off.

The men were tied at the end of the match at 100 birds each, and then each shot at ten more birds. Murphy, who had been shooting in marvellous on, grassed his ten straight off the reel, but Macalester tripped up on his fifth pigeon-a fast right-quartering incomer-losing the match and the beautiful silver trophy. Murphy was loudly cheered after his notable victory. Macalester is also a wonderful shot, and has never been defeated in a private

At the close of the forty-sixth round on Friday, Murphy led Macalester by one bird, but, in turn, was two birds behind Palmer, the champion of last year. Murphy missed only three birds yesterday out of fifty-four shot at. His seventeenth, an incomer, he grassed in fine style. His twenty-second and twenty-third birds were both fast low drivers. and the clever manner in which he stopped them drew much applause from the crowd of spectators. He made several other remarkable shots, particularly in the eighty-sixth round, when he stopped a low right-quartering incomer with his second bar-

Macalester also made shots yesterday which would previously have appeared impossible, especi-ally in the twelfth, thirteenth, fifteenth and twentieth rounds. The last two were at right-quartering incomers, and he grassed them with the second barrel just at the boundary line.

Palmer captured third money, and was only two rds behind the winners of the match. Davenport, Wright and Work tied for fourth place, and in the shoot off Davenport killed ten birds withest a miss, while his opponents each lost one. Davesport was unfortunate in the beginning of the match, or he might have been closer to the winner at the end. His gun failed to work properly, and he lest four out of his first nine birds. Several of the ontestants dropped out of the match after the first Edgar G. Murphy proudly exhibited the silver arophy he had won, and it was filled with a sparkling beverage a number of times for the benefit of those who wished to drink to his health. The winner not who wished to drink to his health. The winner has only got the trophy, valued at $250, but first money, which amounted to $630. The second man got $350, the third $210 and the fourth $70. John S. Hoey acted as referee again yesterday and gave the same complete satisfaction as on the early previous. It was a joily crowd of clubmen that returned to this city in a special car at the close of the match. Cheers were given not only for the victors, but for the vanquished as well, and they were given with a will.

ANOTHER REPORT HELD BACK.

THE NEW-YORK YACHT CLUBS REGATTA COMMITTEE WAITING FOR THE DUN-RAVEN FINDING.

Ex-Secretary William C. Whitney was asked early Club Inquiry Committee would be made public. He the members of the committee to all questions on believed there would be no report for a week. week has gone and the contents of the long-delayed, anxiously looked-for document is still unknown.

The printer has probably finished his work by this and a notice for a special meeting of the yacht club to hear the report may be looked for tomorrow or Tuesday.

The delay on the part of the Inquiry Committee causes another report, in which the yachting world is interested, to be kept under lock and key, and away from those who are anxious to see it. Nicholas Kane, the chairman of the Regatta Committee, says that the report of his committee complete and ready for distribution, but that h will not permit it to leave his custody until the important report has gone to the public. As the international races were conducted by the Regatt in the contests, the report will undoubtelly a miai in the contests, the report will undenbtedly entain matter which will be of interest in connection with the Dunraven controversy.

The finding of the committee is a subject which is being freely discussed, and in the absence of any information on the subject every one forms his own conclusions as to what the verdict will be. It hard to find any person who, having followed the case, as well as the measures for serievy on the part of the investigators would allow, her an doubt as to the failure of Dunraven to establish his case, and it is equally difficult to find any one to defend the action of the English yachtsman. The public seems to have come to the conclusion that his charges were false and founded on fancies, and that he was unable to sustain them by evidence, oral or written, and ran away before the committee could administer the moral drubbing which his actions deserved. The public also seems to take I tions deserved. his course as one worthy of censure, and people feel justified in their opinion by the expressions of disapproval which have appeared in the English press. So it seems that the Earl of Dunraven has been tried and found wanting in a good many things on both sides of the water, and still people are anxious to see the report of the learned committee.

The fear that the controversy would have a disappeared, although some people still believe that consideration for the Earl of Dunraven will keep English yachtsmen from building a cup challenger.

Edgins yachtsheri. This question was discussed yesterday when it news was received that the London Athletic Click had sent a challenge to the New-York athlete "If the people on the other side," said a clubma "had lost faith in American sportsmen, and if the took any stock in Funraven's talk, they would ne send us a challenge at this time."

THE ENGLISHMEN WOULD TRY AGAIN. ALLEGED CHALLENGE FROM THE LONDON ATH-LETIC CLUB TO THE NEW YORK ATH LETIC CLUB.

London, Jan. 1L-According to "Vanity Fair," the London Athletic Club has challenged the New-York Athletic Club for a match to take place in July. The Americans will, according to the paper, be the guests of the London Athletic Club. The English team will be selected from all amateurs in the United Kingloom, whether or not they are members of the London Athletic Club.

At the New-York Athletic Club last night B. C All he New York Athletic Club fist night in C. Williams, chairman of the Athletic Committee, said that he thought the article in "Vanity Fair" was premature. He mided that he had recently received a letter from Montaigne Sherman, vice-president of the London Athletic Club, in which he said that a committee from the L. A. C. and the Athletic Union of Great Britain were considering the matter of sending a challenge.

A VALUABLE CHRISTMAS NUMBER. The centennial edition of "The Shipping and Com mercial List and New-York Price Current," which is also a Christmas number, is a publication of un-usual interest. A striking feature of the number is an exceedingly extensive array of excellent portraits of men prominent in New-York's financial, commercial, railroad, industrial and social life. It s an admirable picture gallery of well-known per sons. There is a full account of the American Commerce dinner at Delmonico's, and articles about the Custom House, the Chamber of Com-norce, the New York itearl of Trade and Trans-portation, the New-York Clearing House, the Mari-time Association and the various exchanges of the city. GOOD SPORT ON THE ICE. MERRY PARTIES OF SKATERS THRONG

THE PARK LAKES. CROWDS SO LARGE THAT THE ACCOMMODATIONS

PROVE INADEQUATE—SNOW STILL COVERS THE BIG LAKE IN BROOKLYN.

Thousands cook advantage of the splendid weather to visit the lakes in Central Park and enjoy a few hours of that exhilarating sport, skating At the small pond at Fifty-ninth-st., the large lake at Seventy-ninth-st. and at Harlem Mere was a never-ending line of arrivals. The ice was in excellent condition, and the thousands had a merry time of it. Fond mothers who went with their youngsters to the Park took them, as a general thing, to the Fifty-ninth-st, pond, and in conse-quence the more mature folks were able to skim over the frozen surface of the large lake with more comfort and with less fear of upsetting the midgets than usual. Early in the afternoon the warm sun melted the ice somewhat in the exposed places, but not enough to cause the police to clear the lake.

After 4 p. m. the ice hardened again, and the scene last night was an inspiring one. There is no skate-house for the people, but the weather was o fine that nobody cared, and the banks were lined with young and old, sitting in the snow heaps and buckling on their skates with refreshing unconcern. The Park laborers were kept busy all day scraping the cut ice from the lakes, and in con-sequence the merry throng had a good surface to sequence the merry throng had a good surface to use all the afternoon and last night. The cleaning had to be kept up at regular intervals, and even then the throng was so sarge that some parts of the lake were cut up so fast that the lee looked as if another snowfall had taken place.

One of the largest crowds ever seen on the seventy-two acres of the was present on the lakes in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon. A stream of humanity kept pouring in from the various drives and walks, yet nobody seemed to be going home until nearly nightfall. The crowd was so dense about the skate-house at 3 o'clock in the afternoon that the lee, strong as it was, began to sag and a volume of water poured over the surface, causing a wild scramble among the merry crowd. The police cleared the crowd away as quickly as possible, and compelled those low, on the further side. The skate-house could not accommodate one-third of the crowd, and in consequence men, women and children lined the banks, where they strapped on their skates as best they could.

While the lower lakes were kept in fairly good.

where they strapped on their skates as best they could.

While the lower lakes were kept in fairly good condition, no effort has been made to clear off the snow from the large lake. There was much grumbling in consequence, and many uncomplimentary things were said about the Park officials. In case of a slight thaw, followed by a freeze, the skating will be ruined on this vast sheet of water. When a policeman was asked why the snow had not been cleaned off, he said: What can we do? Our force has been cut down, and there is nobody to do it. We have only about sixty-five laborers in this park, and they are kept busy as it is." If there are over sixty laborers in Prospect Park, part of the number should have been put to work clearing off the snow on the large lake yesterday. There were fully 2000 people present in the afternoon, and they grumbled considerably.

YALE TEAMS NOT GOING TO ENGLAND. New-Haven, Jan. 11.-A prominent Yale athlete aid to-night: "There is absolutely no chance of Yale athletic teams crossing the water, as planned next summer. The crew and the track athletic cams have been making arrangements trip to England and meet either Oxford or Cambridge, but it is practically certain that such an international athletic enterprise would only end in disaster. The Venezueian war scare is responsible for this condition of affairs. If an American athletic team went to England it would be supported by only a smal, body of overs of athletic sport, is do not think that the challenge sent by the Valecrew to Oxford and Cambridge will be accepted by the Englishmen, and I do not think that the Yale track team will offer to go to England, as was partly planned." bridge, but it is practically certain that such .
